

Howe Refrigeration Service Manager

Howe Corporation would like to announce the addition of Jason Cook as the Refrigeration Service Manager at our Global Headquarters in Chicago, Illinois, USA to further improve Howe Corporation's after sales support.

Jason has a refrigeration background dealing mainly in cascade refrigeration, pharmaceutical cold chain storage, and also has experience with tissue culture equipment. Jason spent 8 years at his last company growing from a field technician to technical support and finishing his post as National Service Manager handling all of North America, Central America and South America's. Jason last position was at a sales and service arm of a large multinational laboratory equipment manufacturer. Jason primarily lead the teams dealing with field support, technical support, warranty support, and assisting with quality control reporting to the QA team at the global headquarters.

Jason's skills and experience will allow Howe Corporation to offer more technical services to customers. Service Offerings will include Equipment Commissioning, On-Site Training, Training at Howe HQ, and On-Site Repair consultations.

As Howe Corporations continues to expand its customer base we know the growing Service Department here will always exceed our customer's expectations and we are confident Jason can lead the Service Department with the quality service and support our customers have come to expect.

Below please find Jason's contact information, please feel free to reach out to him.
